Trafficking in Human Beings is a social evil that is constantly increasing.

The United Nations estimates that human trafficking moves between 5 and 7 billion dollars every year, and that some 4 million people find themselves displaced from one country to another.

Drug trafficking and human trafficking are within the most lucrative crimes, representing roughly 1.5% of the GDP on a global scale.

“The physical, psychological and social harm which under-age victims of trafficking specifically suffer makes it necessary to provide treatment different than that which is offered to adults”

GENDER OF VICTIMS

The United Nations estimates that today boys and girls represent one-third of detected victims, and that of every 3 under-age victims, 2 are girls and 1 is a boy.

According to the United Nations, Spain is one of the main destination countries for victims of human trafficking for the purposes of sexual exploitation.

62% of women were introduced into prostitution as minors.

Gender Perspective and Human Rights Approach

The Trafficking of Human Beings is a grave human rights violation.

It is calculated that between 40.000 and 50.000 women and girls are victims of human trafficking, originating from Sub-Saharan Africa, countries in the East, Brazil and Central America.

“Spain is in the spotlight of the commercial sexual exploitation of women and it seated as one of the countries with more men who pay for sex: the third world.”

2.500.000 people are subjected to slavery, of which 56% are victims of sexual exploitation.

Specialized Organization for Minors

Specialized organizations, like APRAMP, have holistic resources which are referred to victims, such as:

- Safe and specialized housing.
- Health, psychological and psychiatric services.
- Social and Educational and resources and training.
- Resources for social and labor insertion.
- Legal aid services.
- Interpretation services.
- Programs for voluntary return.

Specialized

assistance

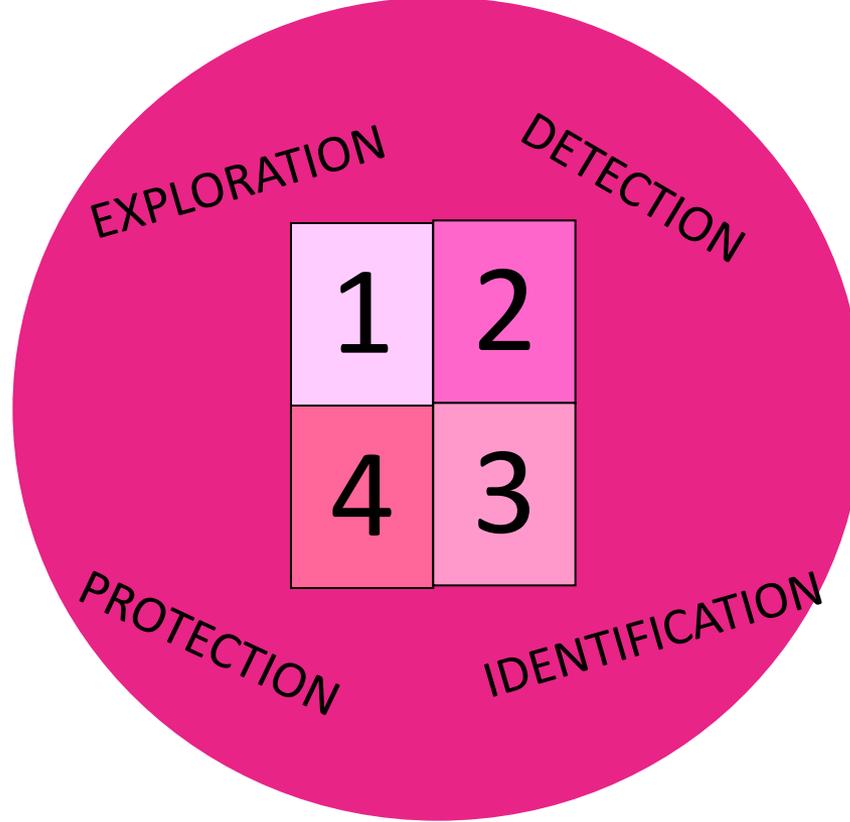

- services are adjusted to the individuals, not the other way around,
- flexible hours, central headquarters, 24-hour helpline,
- mobile units present in the areas where sexually-exploited individuals and/or victims of trafficking can be found,
- adapted services to their native tongue and customs through the social and cultural mediators who are survivors of trafficking themselves.

Holistic

- We empower individuals, boosting their personal, social and economic autonomy.
- We carry out activities and training for professionals.
- We cooperate with the Authorities on behalf of victims and we demand the State to meet their social obligations.

Loveth recovered her liberty and dignity. Today she forms part of APRAMP's Rescue Unit and works so that other women can also achieve the same freedom.

Not all victims have the same luck. APRAMP has been offering specialized services to women and girls who are victims of trafficking since 1985.

“No one offers to be a slave”

Emergency → stay → autonomy

For more than 25 years alongside sexually-exploited women and minors

APRAMP has been able to:

- develop its own methodology
- contribute to returning freedom and dignity to more than 500 people each year
- develop strategies to detect and identify sexually-exploited minors
- maintain direct contact because of its on-the-ground/street work

APRAMP (Association for the Prevention, Reinsertion and Care of the Prostituted Woman)

APRAMP is a non-profit, non-confessional and nonpartisan organization whose principles and philosophy of intervention are oriented by a human rights and gender perspective.

“Whoever might know, for whatever reason, of the existence of a potential human trafficking crime or of a possible victim of trafficking, should file a report before the prosecuting authorities, the competent judicial body or police in accordance with the Code of Criminal Procedure.”
